ALEJANDRO M LOPEZ

Introduction

My work explores the spiritual dimension of nature and our shared existence within it. Each painting is created in remote landscapes, where the act of hiking and climbing becomes a form of meditation. In that stillness, I paint live, responding not to what I see, but to what I feel: the energy, movement, and presence of the natural world.

About the Artist

Alejandro M. Lopez was born in Los Angeles and, after studying at Art Center College of Design, spent 25 years living and painting across four continents. He now works between California and Japan.

His practice is rooted in immersion. Often spending weeks alone in nature, his work reflects direct, lived encounters with some of the world's most powerful landscapes. Rather than literal representation, he draws on his training in the five elements to capture the essence and energy of a place.

Working with raw Belgian linen and handmade surfaces, Alejandro blends Eastern and Western techniques, combining sumi ink, mineral pigments, and traditional Japanese materials with contemporary mediums. Each piece is created outdoors, leaving space and minimal gesture to evoke the timeless, ever-changing force of nature.
